A New Era for An Old Site

By Mick Colageo

What looked from a distance like a tool shed on stilts, the Marion Harbormaster office was transported Friday morning by a giant forklift into a new location toward the end of Island Wharf where it is up and running.

Long considered outdated in terms of functionality and capacity, the push for the facility's replacement is being realized with the ongoing construction of the new Maritime Center in the northeast corner of the property.

A permanent future for the old office has yet to be determined, but word is that especially given recent updates inside, it would make sense to extend its useful life perhaps at Old Landing.

Planning Board member (and former Marion Fire Chief) Jon Henry recalls a photo in the town's Spring Street Fire Station that displays the first horse-drawn piece of fire apparatus received by the department, a pressurized hose from which emanates a stream of water. In the background of the photo is part of what was to become the Harbormaster's headquarters at Island Wharf.

"It was like a place to sit and relax, no changing rooms ... that is now where the bandstand is," said Henry.

Before World War I, the town's Village Improvement Association was appointed by volunteers

On the Cover: Marion's existing harbormaster's headquarters building was lifted from its elevated underpinnings and relocated directly onto the wharf on July 26. The building was promptly powered up with air conditioning, as construction continues on the new Maritime Center in the northeast corner of the property. A permanent location for the old building has yet to be determined. Photo by Mick Colageo to modernize and improve the area with the planting of grass and flowers. They also built a bandstand circular in shape. That version of the bandstand was damaged in the 1938 and 1953 (Carol) hurricanes, the second event sealing its demise.

To the east near the water was the development of what is now the remaining, ground-level construction housing bathrooms. Its initial, open-sides iteration goes back to WWI. The facility was built up in phases.

"I think the biggest part was the WPA section," said Henry, alluding to the Works Progress Administration program enacted in 1935 by President Franklin D. Roosevelt as a recovery tool following the Great Depression.

"The WPA put people to work," said Henry, remembering the Serpa teenagers who built concrete revetments to stabilize the area. Then there was a small public beach. "The more boats got into the harbor, the less desirable it became to swim there."

The Harbormaster at the time was William Coulson Jr., who also worked at Barden's boatyard and was married to Elizabeth (Barden) Coulson. Henry recalls Fred Barden's grocery in Marion village and how his son-in-law took it over and ran it at the beginning of WWII.

The Harbormaster office did not get its bathrooms until Henry was serving in the Army. He estimates that the town built the now-old office during George Jennings' tenure and recalled work done through CETA, the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act enacted by President Richard Nixon in 1973.

Jennings retired from the phone company and became harbormaster.

"Everything that was modernized was done during George Jennings' tenure," said Henry, recalling the installation of new docks and improved boats and communications. "It made life a lot nicer for the boating community, both local and the people who came to visit."

The phased structure eventually became the elevated office and accompanying, ground-floor, public bathrooms that remain amidst the new construction across the lot.

Mike Cormier was subsequent Marion harbormaster whom Henry considers "equally efficient," having made crucial updates to the service. It was during Cormier's tenure that Isaac Perry joined the department as assistant harbormaster and shellfish officer, a role that would be assumed by Adam Murphy during Perry's tenure as harbormaster. Perry is now Mattapoissett's harbormaster and Murphy is Marion's harbormaster.

Thanks to their efforts and that of the Marine Resources Commission, grant funding was secured from the state's Seaport Economic Council, appropriations were made at two town meetings, and a new harbormaster headquarters is less than two months from its grand opening.

The old office, meanwhile, is suddenly a fish out of water, still useful and looking for a new home.

Cool Advice for Heatwave

By Michael J. DeCicco

It's time to talk keeping cool across the Tri-Town area. The National Weather Service has issued a heat advisory for the region, with temperatures expected to climb at least through mid-week into the 90s, with tropical-level humidity making it feel close to 100 degrees.

Fortunately, cooling centers are available to all

Tri-Town residents this summer. Residents looking for a break from the heat in Marion can visit the Cushing Community Center on Route 6 and the Elizabeth Taber Library on Spring Street, both of which will be open normal business hours, Marion's Public Health Director Lori Desmarais and Fire Chief Brian Jackvony have announced. The Community Center is open from 8:30 am to 4:30 pm, as are all town offices. Taber Library is open Monday and Wednesday from 10:00 am to 5:00 pm and Tuesday from 10:00 am to 8:00 pm.

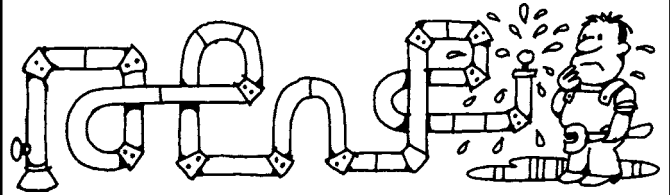

The cooling center for Rochester residents is located in the town's Senior Center, 67 Dexter Lane, which is home to the Rochester Council on Aging. It opens at 7:00 am every weekday and stays open until 3:00 pm Monday through Thursday and until 1:00 pm on Friday.

The spacious, fully air-conditioned center boasts a back-up generator if the power goes out elsewhere in town, COA Director Eric Poulin said. Should there be an extreme heat emergency, he said, Fire Chief Scott Weigel will be able to make the call to activate that spare power source.

July is usually the slowest month attendance-wise, Poulin noted. But he has already heard one or two seniors say they were there because it has been designated as the town's official cooling center.

Poulin added proudly that last year was a record year for Senior Center attendance in general. There were 632 Rochester COA members, and aside from that number approximately 335 other residents visited the center every month. That compares well to 2022 when there were 453 members and approximately 300 other visitors. "We are tracking to have that same number this year," he said.

According to Mattapoisett Town Administrator Mike Lorenzo, Old Rochester Regional High School will serve as the town's cooling center in the case of an extreme heat emergency. Mattapoisett Police Chief Jason King has the decision on whether to designate a cooling center in such a case, Lorenzo told The Wanderer.

Meanwhile, the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA) has offered important tips. The first of these is never leave children or pets alone in a closed vehicle. Even with the windows cracked open, interior temperatures can rise almost 20 degrees Fahrenheit within 10 minutes.

With similar safety concerns in mind, people should slow down and avoid strenuous activity. Wear lightweight, loose-fitting, light-colored clothing. This is because light colors reflect heat and sunlight and help maintain normal body temperature.

People are advised to drink plenty of water before getting thirsty. Avoid alcoholic beverages and liquids high in sugar or caffeine. If your doctor generally limits the amount of fluid you drink, ask how much you should drink during hot weather. Eat well-balanced, light, regular meals.

Stay indoors as much as possible and limit exposure to the sun. Do not leave pets outside for extended periods of time. If you must be outdoors, limit your outdoor activity to the morning and evening hours. Try to rest often in shady areas so your body temperature will have a chance to recover.

Use sunscreen with a high SPF and wear a wide-brimmed hat. If you do not have air conditioning, stay on the lowest floor of your residence, out of the sun. Avoid using your stove and oven. Electric fans may provide comfort, but when the temperature is in the high 90s, fans will not prevent heat-related illnesses.

Taking a cool shower or bath or moving to an air-conditioned place is a much better way to cool off. Consider spending time in air-conditioned public spaces, such as schools, libraries, theaters and other community facilities.

In addition, the Tri-Towns encourage residents to check in on elderly neighbors, those with health conditions, or anyone without access to air conditioning. Also, make sure pets have access to fresh water, as well as shade and a cool place to rest.

True Blue Horseshoe Crab Yields Critical Data By Marilou Newell

We are so fortunate to have science-based programs that are easily accessible. Whether you are seeking educational programming for your children or for yourself, the Marion Natural History Museum offers that and so much more.

On July 24, Derek Perry, invertebrate biologist for the Massachusetts Department of Marine Fisheries, gave a presentation primarily geared towards adults on methods and the importance of data collection for the noble and ancient horseshoe crab.

Perry explained that one important aspect for the data collection and study is its rare, blue-colored blood used in medical research. There are 22 locations where population and nesting-site information is gathered along the eastern coast. From Delaware, home to a dense population, to locations throughout coastal Cape Cod north to Plymouth, volunteers painstakingly collect details.

But let's for a moment take a quick peek at the animal itself.

Horseshoe crabs were roaming prehistoric shorelines as the great dinosaurs populated the planet. This mighty arthropod hasn't changed much over the eons of its existence. Horseshoe crabs are chelicerates, making them closely related to arachnids like spiders, ticks and scorpions. They could be considered a marine spider.

Now consider that the animal has existed for 300,000,000 years, actually longer than the dinosaurs. It lives about 25 years, molting some 15 or more times during its life. They have nine eyes scattered around their armored body and light receptors in their tail. That tail, called a telson, is not a defensive weapon. It's designed to help the creature flip back over if pushed onto its back. As for legs, it has 10; that allows it to walk on the seafloor.

The National Wildlife Federation reports, "Horseshoe crabs utilize different habitats depending on their stage of development. The eggs are laid on coastal beaches in late spring and summer. After hatching, the juvenile horseshoe crabs can be found offshore on the sandy ocean floor of tidal flats. Adult horseshoe crabs feed deeper in the ocean until they return to the beach to spawn. Many shorebirds, migratory birds, turtles, and fish use horseshoe-crab eggs as an important part of their diet. Horseshoe crabs are a keystone species within the Delaware Bay ecosystem."

We were interested in the history of horseshoe crabs and medical use, which led to economics. Perry talked about the animal's importance as a source of income for local fishermen. He talked about the regulations established to protect horseshoe crabs from being aggressively harvested, and he talked about the collection process used for siphoning its blood and the acceptable levels of mortality the industry allows in the process.

Part of that process includes the tagging of animals during the population counts, much of which is done on a voluntary basis, data which is critical not only for the horseshoe crabs' continued survival but for the fisherman's economic stability.

The collection process has a medieval quality. Long rows of animals are hung and bled. The blood is collected. There is an acceptable level of mortality. Yet the benefits outweigh those victims, according to long-established, scientific norms.

Lectures should always produce a desire to learn more. Perry's presentation did just that. We found that horseshoe-crab blood is manufactured into a substance called limulus ameocyte lysate or LAL, which can detect harmful pathogens in critical medicines.

Because much of the data collected is voluntarily submitted, exact figures are nearly impossible to verify, but approximately 15% of all horseshoe crabs used in the blood-collection process don't survive the procedure.

There is good news on the horizon, however; synthetic forms of blood are being developed. The wild harvesting may eventually not be needed to ensure that humans are being medically treated with safe chemicals. The living fossils may once again enjoy their peaceful coexistence with humans minus the 21st century bloodletting.

I love the Olympics! Since TV was invented and network programming began, I've looked forward to watching the masters do their thing on the small screen. This once-little child was mesmerized by the swimming, running, jumping, gymnastics and everything else offered up. Whether it was summer or winter, I loved it all. Fast forward.

The 2024 event's opening ceremonies were not to my liking. Something about faux beheadings, including heads bobbing along the Seine felt odd. But what about Celine Dion? Talk about a comeback. She's my hero. Talent plus toughness – you go, girl. Give that superstar a gold medal for her outstanding rendition of a "Hymn to Love." It brought tears to my eyes, and I don't even speak French. Sacre bleu!

Once upon a time, believe it or not, I considered myself rather athletic. After receiving a diagnosis of osteoporosis at age 39, it was game on. My casual walks at lunchtime around the corporate office park took on a new meaning. Coworkers would occasionally ask to join me, but even the tallest quickly faded from the pace I set. It felt so good returning to my office with all those endorphins pumping.

Today as I watch the Olympics from my comfy perch on the recliner couch, I am reminded that I must work myself up and hit the asphalt, as best I can. My stride isn't as robust as it once was, but I'm not willing to chuck this body aside just yet. We still have work to do.

Watching those young athletes compete on the global stage is inspiring even for this aging soul. They put everything on the line for their moment to shine like a medal rightly earned and worn around their necks. Nothing can compare to the high they must feel if they do medal in their chosen sport. I don't care what country they are from; I just want them to experience that hard-earned joy.

For those Olympians who fall off equipment, crashing spectacularly to the floor, or fail in some other way to execute their chosen feat, I want to scoop them up in my mother-arms and tell them, "Everything is going to be alright ... you did your best ... there's always next time." For some, that may be true but not for all.

When I was fit with a full body of muscles and muster at my command, I felt I was on top of the world. Although I was never a runner, I was made for endurance, not speed. I'd walk as fast as I possibly could at a snappy pace. I was doing my personal best every day. Oh, the joy of movement.

The closest I ever got to truly understanding what a real athlete goes through came when I signed up for Fourth of July road races, and that one time I attempted the Lions Club triathlon. I'm still proud of my last-place standing. For me, just completing the course was my gold-medal moment.

In full disclosure, I completed the cycling and running (speed-walking) portions. A pal of mine at the time volunteered to do the swimming portion. Last place was just fine by me, although I think she was a bit disappointed.

Thanks to Nero, who history says created games testing man against man in various athletic feats, we are similarly entertained in 2024. But, assuredly, Nero could never have imagined the spectacle it would become complete with Snoop Dogg as an announcer. Who let the dog(s) out?

Olympic Games People Play

Thoughts on...

By Dick Morgado

Every four years the best athletes of the world gather to compete for the title of "World Champion" of this or that. This year the Olympics are being held in Paris, France, the City of Light and the home of the Eiffel Tower, the Louvre, Notre Dame Cathedral and sweat.

Summer temperatures in Paris average in the 80s, and this year has been the hottest on record.

Luckily, many of the events like Gymnastics, Swimming, Basketball, Weightlifting and Alpine Skiing will be held in air-conditioned arenas. Just checking to see if you were paying attention. Alpine Skiing is a winter sport.

However, prior to 1924, when the Winter Games were introduced, Figure Skating was a Summer Olympic sport. You're probably wondering how they kept the ice frozen. Surprisingly, artificial ice was invented in 1876. Unfortunately, the Zamboni machine used to refresh ice today wasn't invented until 1953, so refreshing the ice was a labor-intensive job. Do you think ice brushing, later known as curling, was invented at the Olympics? Probably not.

I do know that Canoe Slalom is an Olympic sport this year. I'm not sure what that is, but I assume someone rides a canoe, around poles, down a steep hill. Maybe not. Speaking of water sports, Surfing returns. The competition isn't being held on the River Seine but a few miles away in Tahiti, French Polynesia!

The 1900 Paris Games spanned five months to complete when 24 countries competed. The hotel bills must have been enormous.

Synchronized Swimming is back under a new name, Artistic Swimming. Apparently, someone realized that no one could tell if the swimmers were actually synchronized because most of the action took place underwater. In the 1900 Games, Solo Synchronized swimming was an Olympic sport. It didn't stay afloat long for obvious reasons, though surprisingly it returned in 1984, 1988 and 1992 when no one was apparently paying attention.

Several other sports disappeared in the 1900 Games, including Obstacle Swimming where the athletes had to swim around ... well, obstacles. Swimmers had to climb greased poles (don't ask, I don't know) and maneuver around rows of boats strategically placed in the River Seine. We have a harbor full of boats that never seem to move. Maybe next year Harbor Days could add this to their event schedule.

Tug-O-War was once an Olympic sport but is no more, and the famous pigeons of Paris can breathe easy this year. Live Pigeon Shooting was banned after the 1900 Games when 300 pigeons were sacrificed for sport.

Beach Volleyball is one of my favorite Olympic sports. The only sport I ever won a trophy in was beach volleyball at our own town beach. I guess I missed my athletic calling.

Of the 32 different sports in Paris, there is a number the average person can play. Flag Football is one. If you can play it without running, I'd be game. Golf, of course, is another, but I gave that up years ago. Backyard sports of Badminton, Tennis and Archery are there. I walk a lot, maybe I might qualify for Race Walking at the next Summer Games in Los Angeles.

To end today's lesson, you should know that between 1921 and 1948, artists competed by creating works of art like stamps and posters. Had I been born earlier, I might have a gold medal hanging on my bedpost today. Oh, well.

Are You Taking A Daily Aspirin?

What Does The Doctor Say?

By Dr. Edward Hoffer

Should you be taking a daily aspirin?

First, a little bit of (easy) basic science: We cut ourselves all the time, and nature has given us protection against bleeding to death every time this happens.

The first line of defense is our platelets, small blood particles that go to the site of disrupted blood vessels and plug any small holes, like the little Dutch boy at the dike.

The second and more permanent way bleeding is stopped is that proteins in our blood form clots.

These protective forces can cause harm. Platelets attracted not to a hole in an artery but to an irregular surface such as a cholesterol plaque can block off the artery, causing a heart attack or stroke.

(Unneeded clots can also cause problems – we will discuss that another day.)

Aspirin works to prevent platelets from clumping together. This effect is rapid and effective: A single dose of 81 or 162 mg ("low dose") aspirin paralyzes all the circulating platelets. Platelets turn over rapidly; you get an entirely new set every 7 days, so a single dose will be effective for a few days only.

Many decades ago, it was shown that daily low-dose aspirin started within 24 hours of a heart attack dramatically reduced the risk of another heart attack and stroke. This effect is called "secondary prevention:" preventing a recurrence, and nothing has changed this benefit. If you have coronary disease, you should be on aspirin unless you are at very high bleeding risk.

The problem comes when the prescription of aspirin moves from this valid use to broader use. It seems logical that if aspirin taken after a heart attack prevents another one, taking aspirin before a heart attack should prevent a first one, so-called "primary prevention."

Aspirin taken this way does decrease a first heart attack or stroke, but only by a very small amount. This benefit is typically outweighed by the increased risk of bleeding that comes with aspirin use.

The higher your risk of heart attack or stroke and the lower your risk of bleeding, the more the evidence says to take aspirin. If you have multiple risk factors such as hypertension, high cholesterol, smoke and have a positive family history, and particularly if you have a high coronary calcium score, the more likely you would benefit from daily low-dose aspirin.

If your coronary risk is only moderate and if you have had a bleeding ulcer or other serious bleeding, you are better avoiding aspirin.

In between? The old fallback: Talk to your doctor!

No known major coronary risk? The risks almost certainly outweigh the benefits.

Forever Young: Winner Credits Coaching Couple

Mattapoisett Lions Club Triathlon

By Mick Colageo

Tyler Young's victory in Sunday's Mattapoisett Lions Club Triathlon was so convincing that it seemed the 2024 Old Rochester Regional High School graduate could have gone out and done a second triathlon in the afternoon.

Keyed by his 6:02 mile pace in the 3.1-mile run that completed the competition, Young's overall winning time of 54:07 was one minute and four seconds faster than 55-year-old runner-up Marvin Wang (55:11). Edward Rheume, 62, took third place in 56:34.

In the recovery area only seconds after running first under the inflatable arch on Water Street, the 18-year-old from Marion was eager to seize upon a reporter's question about the retirement of longtime ORR cross-country and track coaches Bill and Cindy Tilden.

"Those were my favorite coaches, those are my favorite coaches, they will forever be basically the best people who have ever come to that program – ever,” said Young. “They are the people who caused me to love the sport as much as I do, so I’m happy they were able to be there for all my four years of high school. It’s impressive how long they’ve been there.

“I wouldn’t be the athlete I am today if it wasn’t for them.”

Recalling how Mr. and Mrs. Tilden started the Southcoast Running Club, Young was introduced to Cindy Tilden’s conditioning camp in 2021 during the COVID-19 pandemic.

“That’s what really got me to know her, and ... they’re just very personal coaches,” he said. “They understand their athletes, which is great. And that’s how they’re able to push you. And they’re not easy going, they obviously know they need to challenge their athletes. That’s what sets (ORR) apart, they know the athletes need to get the work done. ... They ask a lot, but they’re always there for us.”

Young recalled working through an injury during his high school career and how understanding the Tildens were with his situation. “They’re the reason I haven’t gotten injured other than that,” he said.

Having run the 800, mile and 1,000 indoor and also cross-country in high school, Young has committed to run track beginning later this month at UMass Lowell.

The Lions Club Triathlon followed the conventional format in the order of swim, bike and run.

That typically puts Young in a comeback position, but his 4:40 time in the water was tied for sixth overall in that phase. His 29:24 bike was 2:50 behind Wang’s second-place bike of 26:34, and that left Young outside the lead. But within the first mile of the run, Young knew he could catch the leaders. His event-best 18:45 run put him comfortably over the top.

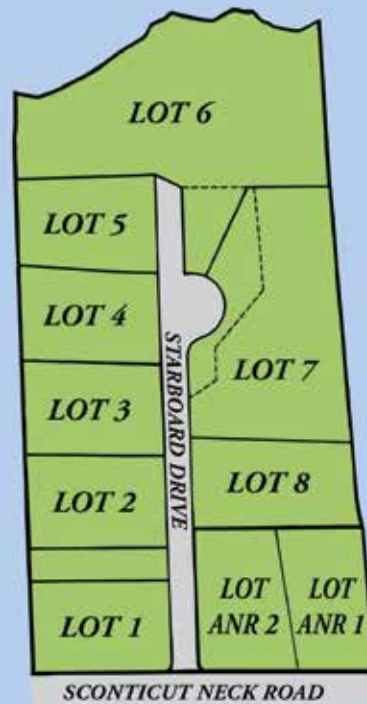

“Biking and running is where I have to put all my energy into the race. ... When I come out of the water, I don’t really try to pay attention to the place I’m in or the time I did because I know I’m going to make it up,” said Young, who is also a mountain biker. “I wasn’t expecting to win, but I felt pretty good on the run, that’s what I’m really strong in. ... competition for me to catch in the biking stage.”

Strengths and weaknesses were the opposite for women’s winner Heather Peckham of Middletown, Rhode Island, whose 1:02:57 time was boosted by her 5:10 swim and 32:03 bike. Her 24:14 run was nonetheless third among women.

“I was an athlete my whole life, and I took a break when I had my son,” said the 42-year-old Peckham, who got back to competition three years ago.

“Run is the hardest part for me,” she said, admitting to a temptation to push the gameplan because her first appearance in Mattapoisett felt so inviting. “Yes, it was a beautiful course. ... I opened up and rode super-fast. It was beautiful, and there were so many volunteers everywhere. ... Instead of following signs, they were there. It was nice.”

Peckham was convinced to compete in Mattapoisett by one of her teammates on the New Bedford-based Triathlon with Amy team, two members of which competed last weekend in the Ironman Maine event.

“Everybody I run into that’s done this before, they absolutely love it,” said Peckham, who leaned on the Lions Club volunteers just like the many other competitors who could be seen pointing and looking at staffers for confirmation on the correct course direction as they entered next phases of competition. Recalling a smooth practice run, Peckham still had her real-deal moments.

“So when you go ahead and ride (the course) beforehand and you know where you’re going,” said Peckham. “(In competition), you get in the water, come out and say, ‘where am I going?’ Same thing: I came in from the bike, I went to come in the wrong way, and (the volunteers said), ‘no, you’ve got to go this way.’ ... Thank God for those volunteers.”

The previous week in New Bedford, the Whaling City Triathlon was greeted by much heavier summer weather. Peckham finished second in her 40-44 age group.

Former Mattapoisett native Mary Cass, 63, competed for the third time in four days, taking third overall (1:04:33) a minute behind 60-year-old runner-up Marielle Yost (1:03:33).

Storms, Tides Have MAB's Attention

Mattapoissett Marine Advisory Board

By Marilou Newell

The July 25 meeting of the Mattapoissett Marine Advisory Board may have been short on agenda items but it was, in fact, heavy with importance.

After remotely opening the meeting, Chairman Carlos DaSousa asked the board for feedback on such matters as emergency evacuation planning, stormwater management as it pertains to flooding of the wharf area and other matters related to global-warming resiliency.

DaSousa said that they are still waiting for information from Charles Engineering, specifically regarding the type of concrete that may be specified when repair work begins on Long Wharf. Resident Brian Crowley has been concerned over the concrete selection and favors abrasion testing of stones and other materials. DaSousa commented that the engineers had not committed to testing protocols to date, so the MAB could request other forms of material testing.

Earlier in construction planning, issues related to rising tides and storm-surge resiliency were addressed. This led to discussions regarding stormwater and flooding due to storm surges and rising high-tide levels. Of particular concern were the frequent floods during "These are becoming more frequent," DaSousa remarked. He said planning for storms and associated evacuations involves the harbormaster's office, Police and Fire departments and the Highway Department. Board member Ned Kaiser shared the challenges faced when coordinating private marinas' use of the public boat ramp during such events.

The board continues its work on these matters and others when they meet again on Thursday, August 29, at 7:00 pm.

Fieldstone Granted Septic Waivers

Marion Board of Health

By Mick Colageo

Fieldstone Market's ongoing expansion is considered inconsequential to its septic usage, and therefore the Marion Board of Health granted the store with two waivers during the board's July 25 public hearing on the matter.

Representing owner Arnie Johnson, Brian Grady of G.A.F. Engineering submitted a variance request from the Marion Sanitary Code, hoping for a judgment to allow Fieldstone to avoid spending for a septic system with denitrification technology and also a variance request from the state Title 5 environment code regarding multiple compartment tanks at the 806 Mill Street (Route 6) location.

As proposed, the first compartment would have a 1,000-gallon capacity and the second a 500-gallon capacity, both falling below what is required.

Grady summarized the expansion project at Fieldstone that was recently vetted by the Planning Board. He said there will be no new plumbing fixtures with the expansion, no additional employees, and no additional consumption of water. Grady said the expansion is merely to better service customers.

Title 5 classifies Fieldstone as a supermarket and renders it subject to the same regulations as Shaw's or Stop & Shop, for instance. The leaching field, Grady said, will be expanded.

"It would be a significant change to remove the septic tank ... that's a heavier lift relative to changing the soil-absorption system," he said.

Board member Dr. Ed Hoffer asked if Fieldstone has public toilets. Arnie Johnson explained that the bathrooms in the store are used mainly by employees but accessible to patrons.

Grady said the expansion will include 1,500 square feet of store space and the rest for storage. There is no sit-down food service in the store. Arnie Johnson said he would like to fill up the new space with specialty items and widen the aisles in the store.

Fieldstone's parking expansion will free up 11 or 12 spaces for customers. Arnie Johnson touched on other expenses such as car-charging stations but noted that he is avoiding following the trend seen elsewhere in the state toward using tents to accommodate busier seasons, a practice that he said would result in the town collecting less in property taxes.

Asserting a lack of clear evidence supporting the town's denitrification bylaw, board member Albin Johnson renewed his push to abolish it or at least put it aside until the state requires more of the town than it presently does under Title 5.

Dr. Ed Hoffer asked if Fieldstone would consider testing for current nitrogen levels. Citing the recommendation of George Heufelder, the sanitation expert who serves as Marion's consultant, Dr. John Howard asked essentially the same question, seeking a cost estimation. Heufelder's correspondence to the board suggested that due diligence requires some measure of testing.

"We've done that," said Grady, estimating 90 to 100 milligrams. "It's probably twice what a single-family home is."

Grady said Fieldstone is compliant with Title 5, except for the two tank sizes, the subject of the other variance request before the board.

"We don't anticipate flows to increase, so what's there is adequate," he said, noting that the septic tank has an effluent filter. "What it all comes down to is cost is one of the factors, and we're not anticipating any additional demand. It's dry sales space."

Arnie Johnson said he would love to tie into town sewer but cannot afford the cost of building his own line to the nearest connection point.

Satisfied that Grady has done his due diligence in studying the wastewater situation at Fieldstone, Hoffer said he considered it reasonable to grant the waivers. Albin Johnson seconded Hoffer's motion and Howard agreed, making it a unanimous vote.

Updating the board on 76 Piney Point Road, Rick Charon of Charon Associates said the property will use the Singulair denitrification system. He said there is an increase in flow to 735 gallons with a 1,300 square foot leaching field. There are no variances requested. The board accepted his report.

Asked by Albin Johnson, Charon estimated that a regular Title 5 system for that size house would cost approximately $30,000 and close to $10,000 more with the denitrification technology.

In her update to the board, Health Director Lori Desmarais noted recent cases of animals found to have rabies and people who have suffered cat bites.

In her Disease Update, Desmarais said there is evidence in town of tickborne illnesses, mostly Lyme disease. The Health Department has conducted some education at the Cushing Community Center on heat, especially as it affects older adults.

The Health Department also talked to Recreation Director Scott Tavares at the Recreation Department and conducted education with children and sent them home with information.

"I believe it's going to be something we can continue to do," said Desmarais, who said interest was also high at the Touch a Truck event held this summer at Silvershell.

Desmarais confirmed that as of the July 25 meeting, the town had seen Eastern Equine Encephalitis (EEE) in mosquitoes but not yet in any animal or human.

In an Arbovirus update, Desmarais reported that on July 2 and 3, the state announced the discovery of the first West Nile-infected mosquito and the first EEE-infected mosquito.

October 21 Special Town Meeting warrant.

The 3,649 square-foot playground's full cost will be $81,881.70. Half of that cost will be borne by the local nonprofit Tri-Town for Protecting Children. The Park Commission will ask voters in October that the town's half ($40,940.85) come from its own available funds.

Commission Chairman David Hughes started the discussion Tuesday by noting the cost of the playground alone will be approximately $73,000. The remainder of the total cost will be for the 4-foot-high, 250-foot-long chain-link fence with two gates that will surround the park. One gate will be for pedestrians to enter and the other for playground equipment.

Hughes said proposing such an article so early before the deadline to submit articles for the warrant is a good thing.

"We'll be way ahead of the deadline," he said. Hughes told Tri-Town for Protecting Children member Jackie Eckert that a plaque noting her group's contribution to creating the playground will be placed at one of the gates, then asked her what details and color scheme she wants to see within the playground. "You tell us what you want," he said.

Hughes then elaborated that once Town Meeting approves the funding in October, Highway Surveyor Jeff Eldridge will be ready to begin the construction right away. Construction might be complete by December, he said. Commission member Kenneth Ross explained this park will be replacing the old equipment that is now found at Gifford Park.

"Thank you for coming forward with this plan,"

Hughes said to Jackie Eckert. "This playground is better for us and better for the children."

The playground, suitable for ages 2 to 12, will include a slide and swing sets, a Cyclo Cone Climber, a curved balance beam, a balance-and-bounce house and two benches for children and parents resting between play.

Waterfront Whacking under Investigation

Marion Conservation Commission

By Mick Colageo

In his July 24 report to the Marion Conservation Commission, Conservation Agent Doug Guey-Lee sought guidance after he learned that unauthorized cutting of vegetation has been taking place at 5 Main Street.

The Harbormaster sent Guey-Lee a video of weed-whacking seaward of the seawall. Having spoken by phone with homeowner Michelle Russell, Guey-Lee reported their conversation to the commission.

According to Guey-Lee's report, Russell "wasn't aware of it but also at the same time indicated that she would typically clean ... up the area. ... I took that to mean ... if there's ocean debris. ... She indicated she's in there cleaning up any manner of junk, essentially, which kind of makes sense because it's kind of its own mini-harbor. I see can see stuff drifting into there and not drifting back out."

That noted, Guey-Lee said he made it clear in his correspondence with Russell that altering vegetation in that area is like altering vegetation in a permit area.

"(Workers) were hired ... so I have to believe that they were asked to do that and probably paid to do that. In my opinion, it is altering vegetation in a resource area," said Guey-Lee.

Guey-Lee said he followed up on a 2013 decision that shows the top of a coastal bank at the top of a seawall. He found no indication that the area is saltmarsh but mapped as open water, except for the brief drop in grade at the tow of the wall (coastal bank).

"In my mind, it's pretty straightforward activity that wasn't permitted, and I don't know that we would have permitted that," he said.

Guey-Lee indicated he would like to schedule a site visit but was waiting to hear back on that from Russell.

Commissioner Jeff Doubrava suggested using state access (water) to get a look. "At worst, it's saltmarsh and at best it's coastal beach," he said. "I don't think we'd ever let anybody do that."

The story is further convoluted by Guey-Lee's report that Russell told him former Harbormaster Isaac Perry knew of the activity and took no issue with it. Guey-Lee also recalled from a few weeks back a man representing a home-improvement company asking what it would take to get sea wall work permitted at the address.

Doubling down on Doubrava's statement, Walsh said that none of the many sea wall-repair filings fielded by the commission over the years has ever proposed mowing seaward of the sea wall "because they know that that is not a permissible activity."

Reviewing a 2013 Order of Conditions issued the Russells at 5 Main Street, Walsh referenced stipulations against any mowing of vegetation in the wetland that is not explicitly approved in that OOC.

"When you live on a coastal property, most of what you do on that property is subject to jurisdiction, especially the cutting of vegetation on the seaward side of the sea wall," said Walsh. "It's disappointing that somebody would think that they would be able to do that and not even contact the Conservation Commission office for guidance."

Russell's statement regarding past occurrences are "neither here nor there," according to Walsh. "The fact of the matter is cutting of vegetation is alteration of a resource area. It's just not permitted."

Walsh said it's important that the commissioners "get our own eyes on it." A site visit in the company of the homeowners would be preferred, he said. The ConCom could then determine if the activity is something that rises to the level of an enforcement order or if it can be addressed in some other fashion.

It was agreed that Guey-Lee would coordinate with Commission Chairman Matt Shultz on a letter to be sent via certified mail requesting a site visit.

Chairman John Rockwell regarding outdated wetland lines where the shared-use path is to be constructed. Rockwell essentially asked what ConCom wants to do about updating wetland lines along the old railroad bed. An ANRAD addressing the matter years ago has since expired.

Walsh said a Notice of Intent filing will be necessary to carry out the project.

Doubrava said he walked the path from Front Street to the Mattapoisett town line and that very little has changed. He is more concerned about the path between Front Street and Point Road and said the commission should require delineation in the Point Road area.

Continued from July 10, Blue Fin Realty's Notice of Intent proposing construction of a residential dwelling with associated landscaping, driveway, utilities and grading at 170 Wareham Road (Route 6) was conditioned upon a correction of the abutter's list.

Will Connolly of Zenith consulting engineers attended the continued public hearing, taking the floor to explain that a revised plan has been submitted with the corrected lot number and that the corrected abutters have been notified.

Nancy Childs, the 168 Wareham Road resident who had brought the discrepancy to the commission's attention at its last meeting, noted that while she was on the original abutters' list, she was not on the revised abutters' list and said she should be, seeing as there is only one lot between hers and the project.

Childs explained the Zenith told her that the Marion Board of Assessors provides the abutters' list, from which she was omitted this time. She said upon a call to the Assessors that the board acknowledged the glitch and would issue a correction. Childs advised any other abutters who were missed to follow suit.

Given the commissioners had satisfactorily vetted the project at the last hearing, the members voted to close the public hearing and would later unanimously vote to approve the project.

John and Raquel MacFarlane were voted a Negative Box 3 Determination of Applicability for the installation of six, concrete (precast) pillars and a 12x12-foot, cement-block patio at 52 County Road (Map 11, Lot 14).

The commission made a site visit on July 20, and Guey-Lee told the commissioners that he met with both the owner and contractor and said that the project has no other representation.

Reviewing the proposal, Shultz summarized the project as an enclosed porch supported by the piers with stairs down to a patio, the project being within the buffer zone to a wetland.

The commissioners present, Doubrava, Walsh and Millie Seeberg, concurred in the proposal's straightforwardness, the lone concern being the work being done up to 5 feet from the wetland line.

William and Elizabeth Weber were issued a Certificate of Compliance for their work at 21 East Avenue. Shultz noted that a July 20 site visit revealed deviations from the site plan.

Guey-Lee recalled two certificates of compliance originally requested for the project, one of which was to be withdrawn while representative Dave Davignon of Schneider, Davignon & Leone, Inc., worked with the homeowners on a solution for work that had been done outside of the issued permit.

"It wasn't made clear in the request whether they had addressed (that issue) or not," said Guey-Lee, acknowledging that Davignon was not present. "He'll normally ask if he needs to be there."

Walsh asserted that the applicant did, in fact, address the issue that had prevented the commission from issuing a COC in its last meeting.

"We went out there on Saturday; it was where the pipe had been discharging ... near the boat ramp there," said Walsh. The solution was a riprap, stone detention basin. Shultz further clarified that the installation was pursued via a Request for Determination of Applicability.

The next meeting of the Marion Conservation Commission is scheduled for Wednesday, August 14, at 7:00 pm at the Police Station on Route 6.

MOVIE REVIEW

Two Stooges

By Rob Gonsalves
www.robsmovievault.com

Deadpool & Wolverine.* Starring Ryan Reynolds and Hugh Jackman. Directed by Shawn Levy. Running time: 128 minutes. MPAA rating: R. Now playing in theaters.

It would be easy to say I'd rather see Ryan Reynolds and Hugh Jackman in a microbudget buddy comedy than in a $200 million Marvel thing. But that isn't quite true. The whole point of getting Reynolds and Jackman together is as their popular and lucrative characters, Deadpool (Reynolds) and Wolverine (Jackman). The large, profane personalities in play in Deadpool & Wolverine help put it over as a comedy commenting on the Marvel movies as well as the non-MCU movies that originated at 20th Century Fox and then became part of the MCU when Disney bought Fox. There's a lot of comics-nerd inside baseball in the film, though viewers not heavily versed in what came before should still get something out of it.

But what? D&W amused and diverted me when it babbled and armpit-farted in front of me, but I don't remember much of it, and I don't think it's meant to be reflected on so much as tossed onto a monitor and watched on repeat. Other than one or two emo moments involving Wolverine's regret over heroic attempts that didn't pan out, the movie is lightweight as hell, with so much CGI fighting that hardly anything stands out in terms of choreography or blocking. It's all just Deadpool and/or Wolverine slicing their way through anonymous or recognized baddies, and the weightlessness of it probably helped secure it an R rating. Moreso than its two predecessors or, indeed, anything in the MCU, D&W is a live-action cartoon, with the characters in the appropriate dimensions.

Deadpool must find Wolverine, or a variant of him that didn't die in 2017's Logan, in order to save his own timeline. The Marvel movies have gone all in on the multiverse concept — so did the DC movies before they pulled the plug to make way for yet another reboot next year. D&W mines the concept for some rough handling. The plotting, by director Shawn Levy and four credited other writers including Reynolds, is led by the characters from pre-MCU Marvel movies based on who they could get for the cameos (none of which I'll spoil here). So the events, also involving Professor X's twin sister Cassandra (Emma Corrin), are complications ladled onto a very simple spine of story. If the filmmakers hadn't been able to pencil in X actor, they would've had to go with Y actor and Y character. Most of the appearances are on the level of in-jokes, and when it's time for them to join in the fray they just become CGI action figures like the titular heroes. They're just there to spark nerdish chortles.

Reynolds and especially Jackman do have a way of sneaking human frailty into their performances; the whole reason we like Deadpool is that he plays emotionally hurt even when he's wisecracking. But both heroes are also famously hard to kill or even to damage much, since they have fast mutant healing powers. So they hurl themselves into a fracas and get shot, stabbed, slashed, and otherwise mistreated and just shrug it off. After a while this sort of spectacle grows wearying; there are no pain or stakes attached to the violence. It's just an empty concussive digital feat.

As noted, the leads elevate the experience somewhat. They find the roughhouse comedy in the premise, and maybe the MCU, which had gotten a little too up itself lately — insisting the audience for each new film or Disney+ show be familiar with everything that went before to get anything out of it — needed Reynolds' brand of teasing sacrilege to make this movie universe approachable again. (It apparently worked — the film's box-office take more than doubled its budget on opening weekend.)

Though the Wolverine we see here is not (for the most part) the Logan we saw coming slowly to a stop in his 2017 elegy, I still miss Logan's status as a glum valedictory for a popular hero who even here, in clownish yellow-and-black duds reflecting the outfit he wore in his first 1974 comics appearance, denies that he's a hero. D&W made me chuckle a few times, but ultimately what it served to do was to remind me how thoroughly I've moved on from this material. Jackman has been terrific as Wolverine all these years, and Fox/Marvel had better give regular thanks they lucked into a genuine actor for the role. But now that he's had his farcical "because the fans demanded it" team-up with Reynolds/Deadpool, he, too, should move on.

MAC Theater Presents: Baskerville

Marion Art Center (the MAC) would like to announce the opening of the MAC Theater's Baskerville: A Sherlock Holmes Mystery Opening, August 9.

Synopsis: Get your deerstalker cap on – the play's afoot. Comedic genius Ken Ludwig (Lend Me a Tenor, Moon Over Buffalo, Crazy for You) transforms Arthur Conan Doyle's classic The Hound of the Baskervilles into a murderously funny adventure. Sherlock Holmes is on the case. The male heirs of the Baskerville line are being dispatched one by one. To find their ingenious killer, Holmes and Watson must brave the desolate moors before a family curse dooms its newest heir. Watch as our intrepid investigators try to escape a dizzying web of clues, silly accents, disguises and deceit as five actors deftly portray more than forty characters. Does a wild hellhound prowl the moors of Devonshire? Can our heroes discover the truth in time? Join the fun and see how far from elementary the truth can be.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A misunderstanding tests the temperament of the sometimes headstrong Aries. But instead of blowing your top, take time for a pleasant diversion while things cool down.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A workplace problem could make the divine Bovine see red. But talk it out before you consider walking out. Some surprising facts emerge that can change your earlier focus.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You face a choice between ignoring your uneasy feelings about your relationship with a special person and demanding explanations. A close friend offers wise counsel.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A change you'd been hoping for carries an unexpected complication. Stay the course, and things will work themselves out. Be sure to make time for family and friends.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Aspects favor spending time with loved ones. On the job, new ideas are generally welcomed, but some demands for change could cause problems. Be ready to defend your choices.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Good news: A workplace problem is close to being resolved with results that should please everyone. Take time off to indulge in your love of fun and games.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Most of the time, you are the most unflappable person around. But be ready to be thrown off-balance in the nicest way when Cupid takes aim in your direction.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) It's not often that someone tries to "sting" the sharp-witted Scorpion, but it can happen. Continue to be skeptical about anything that seems too good to be true.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your strong sense of self-esteem helps you serve as a role model for someone who needs personal reassurances. Meanwhile, your efforts pay off in an unexpected way.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Someone close considers revealing a painful secret. Withhold any judgment. Instead, open your generous heart, and offer dollops of your love and understanding.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your talents as a peacemaker are called upon once more as an old problem reemerges with new complications. Move cautiously in order to avoid falling into hidden traps.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The artistic side of yourself is enhanced with the reception given to your new project. Use this success as encouragement toward fulfilling your larger goals.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your natural sense of leadership is combined with a deep sense of responsibility. People trust you to give them both guidance and understanding.

TRITOWN HAPPENINGS

The First Congregational Church of Marion Summer Fair was held on July 27 with an effort to raise funds for the restoration of its clock tower. Main Street was closed to traffic so visitors could enjoy several booths full of goods for sale, along with sports equipment, while visiting the Penny Pinchers' Exchange, a lobster roll or a burger or dog from the grill. A bake sale was conducted on church grounds. Photos by Mick Colageo

Nature Support

Marion Natural History Museum presents Nature Support on Wednesday, August 14 from 10 to 11 am. In the words of E. O. Wilson, insects are “the little things that run the world.” It’s true: protecting insect life protects all life. Insects fulfill vital roles for keeping our planet functioning, such as pollinating our flowers, serving as food sources for birds, decomposing wastes and cycling nutrients. By growing native plants, we can protect insects. Plants provide the foundation for insect life. This extends beyond pollinations services. Virtually all terrestrial and freshwater aquatic plants are fed on by insects. We will review science-based information to provide actionable tools you can rely on. Want to support nature? With the right knowledge and tools, we can build a healthier planet. Join our workshop with Blake Dinius, Plymouth County Entomologist. RSVP to www.marionmuseum.org.

From the Files of the Rochester Historical Society

By Connie Eshbach

The topic of this article comes not from the files in the museum, but from the attic of our 1857 church. Preparing our new exhibit was somewhat labor intensive, so I happened to be there alone around 6:00 one Saturday.

I was startled by a loud and heavy sounding scrabbling noise in the ceiling. It didn't sound like mice or one normal-sized squirrel. After alerting the other board members, several suggestions were made as to what it could be, among them a raccoon or a gorilla.

Although we didn't hear the noise again, we thought it prudent to have a specialist investigate. Having just had the steeple repaired, it looked like we might have another highly expensive job on our hands, but musts needs.

Bill Taylor had a card for a company out of New Bedford who specialize in removing bats in the belfry and other creatures who like to make homes over our heads. A wildlife extractor was sent out. He found a second hole away from the one we had noticed, both being 40 feet from the ground. He then climbed the scary ladder in the museum foyer and disappeared into the equally scary attic. There, he confirmed his original diagnosis of flying squirrels. It seems they settle in groups, so the noise I heard was a bunch of them having a disagreement.

They had been overhead for some time chewing away at the church's wooden beams. It goes without saying that they needed to be removed and that we were lucky to have found them before they did even more damage. I want to thank Kyle, the wildlife extractor, and the owner of Profishant, who were willing to work with us. Realizing that a small, member-supported organization like ours could use a break when it came to pricing, they came through with a healthy discount.

By the time you read this, the saga of the flying squirrels (I know more about their habits that I won't share here) will have ended. Again, thank you to Profishant for all your help. Now, we can turn our worries to peeling paint.

2024 Keel Awards

The Wanderer is pleased to announce that we are soliciting nominations for our 30th annual “Wanderer Keel Awards.” The yearly community service honor, presented to one Tri-Town resident from each of the three central towns in our circulation area, will be announced in our August 29 edition, and each winner will be the subject of a short feature highlighting his/her contributions to the local community. But The Wanderer needs your help in selecting these “unsung heroes.”

The requirements are simple. Nominees must be legal residents for at least five years of Mattapoisett, Marion or Rochester and must have contributed in some way to the overall benefit of the community – directly to town residents, indirectly through efforts in promoting town activities or working to keep the wheels of local government well oiled. The only restriction is that these persons cannot benefit from their efforts in any other way – either financially or politically (hence, sitting elected officials are not eligible).

In doing this, we hope to applaud those who are rarely recognized for their countless hours of service and focus on the many people behind the scenes who remain otherwise anonymous, but who provide crucial support to many town functions.

Like the keel of a ship that keeps the vessel from capsizing, the recipients of the Annual Wanderer Keel Award will be recognized for their stalwart efforts in keeping the community on an “even keel.”

YOU KNOW I DON'T LIKE IT WHEN YOU BRING YOUR WORK HOME WITH YOU!

One Person's Trash Is Another Person's Recycled Art

The Mattapoissett Sustainability Partnership will host its Third Annual RE-ART Show on August 27 to August 31, at the Mattapoissett Free Public Library, 7 Barstow Street, Mattapoissett.

Our waste deserves a second chance, and recycling has led to the emergence of an artistic movement inspiring many artists to transform waste such as paper, cardboard, wood, glass, bottle caps, plastics, cloth, metals and rubber into works of art.

Everyone is welcome to submit recycled artwork. The show is for all ages and abilities; seventy-five percent (75%) of the items used should be recycled materials, excluding adhesives, paint and ink.

For guidelines, go to the Mattapoissett Library's website: mattapoissettlibrary.org.

Please register online via the library calendar of events by Friday, August 23. Contact pcole@sailsinc.org with questions.

Garden Party Art Show

Plans for our third annual art show are underway at the Rochester Council on Aging, showcasing our finest artists. It will be an evening filled with many different expressions of art and a chance to decide which piece is your favorite in our People's Choice Awards.

Applications for our Rochester artists (over 60 please) are available at the center for those who have created paintings and drawings. This year, a separate category has been created for textile arts, such as quilting, crewel, needlepoint, woodturning and other art creations.

The date of the event is August 22 from 6 to 8 pm, being a Garden Party there will be light refreshments, so please bring the family and enjoy a fabulous presentation.

Dungeons and Dragons at the MAC

The Marion Art Center has added a new session of Dungeons and Dragons for August 12 to 16 from 9:00 - 12:30 pm. The previous session from August 5-9 has sold out.

The program is led by Patrick Stephens, leader of the Guild of Imagination, who has been captivated by tabletop and storytelling games like Dungeons & Dragons since he was a child.

Sample Schedule

Day 1: Create your character. Players will bring their imaginary heroes to life and design custom miniatures using HeroForge software. They'll be able to download a digital version of this hero for use in the game.

Days 2-4: Embark on an epic quest. Journey to an ancient island touched by dragons, traverse treacherous terrain, negotiate with allies, battle some baddies and unravel a thrilling mystery alongside fellow adventurers.

Day 5: Experience a climactic finale. Decide the outcome of your heroic journey using a stunning 3-D map and sound effects specially crafted to enhance the storytelling experience. Celebrate the triumphs, setbacks and memories created throughout the week.

The session runs from Monday, August 12 through Friday August 16 from 9:00 am to 12:30 pm daily. The program is suitable for ages 10-15 and costs $240 for MAC members, or $275 for nonmembers. Learn more and register online at marionartcenter.org/d-and-d.

Blessing of the Animals

All creatures are welcome for a blessing of the animals to take place on Sunday, August 11 during our Sunday morning worship service, which begins at 9 am. The pet blessing is hosted by the Mattapoissett Congregational Church, 27 Church Street in Mattapoissett, on the church lawn. Please bring a chair or blanket to sit on. All well-behaved animals and their humans are welcome. www.mattapoissettcongregationalchurch.org.

World of Dolls

Please join us at the Mattapoissett Free Public Library on Tuesday, August 6 from 12:00 noon to 1:00 pm for a fun-filled walk down memory lane with a presentation called World of Dolls. Janice McIntyre will give a presentation on the history of dolls from over six decades (from the mid-1800's to the 1960's), discussing the way dolls were made and how that process changed over time. Enjoy antique bisque dolls from Europe, Shirley Temple dolls, Ginny dolls, Tiny Tears dolls, Madame Alexander dolls and many more on display. You are sure to see your favorite childhood doll.
