The Twilight Zone Explored

By Marilou Newell

Michelle Cusolito has been bringing the exciting world of undersea exploration to children since the mid-2000s. Her non-fiction science-based books do not talk down to children but elevate curiosity while being fun and interesting for all ages. I'd know. I've read them. On October 24, the Plumb Library in Rochester hosted the author as she introduced her latest book, A Window into the Ocean Twilight Zone: Twenty-Four Days of Science at Sea.

The non-fiction writer was able to secure a spot with a multi-national team of oceanographic researchers aboard the ship R/V Sarmiento de Gamboa docked in Vigo, Spain. The team was brought together by the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute, aka WHOI. Through Cusolito's previous partnerships writing about the wonders found in the ocean, she was able to contact the organizers and secure a spot on the boat after a researcher had to back out. Thus began a grueling and exhilarating adventure, not only into the world of deep-ocean research but the collaborative forces needed to survive and get the job done.

Three research vessels would meet up in the North Atlantic to conduct complex experiments focused on learning more about the vast and deep (3,280 feet) midnight zone.

The book is laid out like a ship's diary noting the date, time, latitude, and longitude before scribing the daily goal-driven milestones. There were daily goals that had to be met by the multi-disciplined crew.

The main focus of this crew's work was to collect and store specimens from the area of the ocean known better understand the roles and connections between our atmosphere and our oceans. By understanding that relationship, they hope to grasp more completely how the ocean works in storing carbon – think global warming and climate change.

To capture water samples and animals, Cusolito describes intricate equipment designed to deploy specimen containers or nets in a synchronized manner. She also described the importance of collaboration and collective imagination when things go wrong. The author's ability to bring complicated actions such as moving large-scale equipment into the ocean as well as safely back onboard is on full display. There is a host of mechanized tools like the MOCNESS that holds and tows five separate nets and open or close as directed. This minimizes the capturing of live animals that will perish on board the ship.

Then there is the Stingray, which measures light, oxygen, and chlorophyll. The aptly named MINIONS (MINature IsOpycNal) are small collection units sent into the ocean and later retrieved. They float and collect the seemingly innocuous marine snow. Hold on a second, it contains poop!

Marine snow, Cusolito tells us, is comprised of tiny dead sea creatures, the skin cells that are sloughed off their bodies, and their poop. That's right poop. Marine animals poop like any other animal on the planet we were told. Contained in the fecal matter is carbon that sinks to the bottom of the ocean where it stays unless disturbed. The capturing of carbon in this way helps to regulate and diminish carbon in the atmosphere, a major driver in global warming. The planet's delicate balance between a well-running ecosystem and complete disaster seems to be eroding daily but with organizations such as WHOI, there may still be time to turn back the release of carbon into the atmosphere. Time will tell.

And with educators and explorers and writers like Cusolito, our children may be inspired to help save the planet – poop and all.

Promises, Promises, and Portuguese Pastry

Thoughts on...

By Dick Morgado

The presidential election is finally upon us. Some folks have already voted by mail and others will vote early at town hall. Still, others will wait until actual Election Day. They can anticipate a large turnout so expect to deal with long lines at the polls, unless Mother Nature doesn't like any of the candidates and sends us a drenching rain. Or, heaven forbid, a late-season hurricane that will surely keep people home, especially the undecided (are there still undecideds?).

I, for one, have already cast my ballot, mainly because I don't like long lines. Plus, a nearby restroom is a prerequisite for this old guy to stand in any line for longer than five minutes.

I've been keeping a close eye on the candidates for what seems like a lifetime. You may have noticed that they all make promises and lots of them. Some presidents are able to keep their promises, but most cannot. Some offer pie-in-the sky just to gain votes. Others are sincere when they promise to do this or that, but then must face the reality that Congress actually calls the shots. There have been many promises kept while many never materialized.

During his campaign, Democrat Lyndon Johnson promised to "never let our boys" go to war. His successor, Republican Richard Nixon, promised that he "had a secret plan to end" the Vietnam war. How'd that work out?

Do you remember "Read my lips, no new taxes."? That was Republican George H. W. Bush's famous promise. He based that promise on projections that the economy would grow. Instead, a recession began.

Democratic candidate Woodrow Wilson promised to keep the United States out of war in Europe. Alas, 34 days after being elected to a second term, he signed a Declaration of War against Germany. Circumstances often control whether a promise can be kept.

Republican Herbert Hoover is famous for promising “A chicken in every pot and two cars in every garage.” That was “fake news.” He never said it. The slogan, however, took on a life of its own and Hoover won the election.

President James Polk, a Democrat, promised to resolve the border problem between Oregon and Canada. He did. He promised to reduce tariffs on foreign goods too. Any of this sound familiar? He also promised to serve one term, which he did, then died three months into it.

Presidential campaigns produce so many promises it is hard to keep up. Promises, promises, and more promises!

I have a few promises I have been waiting to hear from the current candidates.

When I was a teacher, one school I worked at would play a game called “Bombardment” in phys. ed. class. It was actually dodgeball which surely has a different meaning than bombardment. I would like one candidate to promise to create a Department of Peace. The Department of Defense was once called the Department of War. Which do you prefer?

Another promise that would have gotten my vote is to offer a large tax break to cover my annual cost of eating. Food prices are so high.

And how about forgiving the loan I will be taking out when I install a new lawn next year. My lawn is a national disaster thanks to all the dogs that have stopped by to visit. Do you know how much grass seed, soil, and fertilizer cost?

I am not greedy. One last promise that would have insured my vote, a nice warm malassada Portuguese pastry waiting for me at the polls.

Didn't happen. Oh well. Be sure to vote if you haven't already!

"Congratulations to our talented Unified Basketball team on their impressive season" Superintendent Nelson said. "Thank you to Principal Devoll, Director Carrig, and Coach Fenton for their amazing work in providing this special recognition for our players. It's times like these that we see and feel the positive impact of inclusivity and comradery amongst our wonderful students and staff."

During the pep rally, students made several handmade posters to cheer on the Unified Basketball Team on their success. Throughout the event, members of the team ran through the banner in celebration of their undefeated season and received many high-fives from peers.

"The Unified Bulldogs embody the value of dedication and hard work" Athletic Director Carrig said. "Teamwork and the joy that comes with it are on full display in everything they do, and I couldn't be prouder of the success they've earned."

How to Pay Less for Four Medication

What Does The Doctor Say?

By Dr. Edward Hoffer

Most adults take prescription medications, either on a regular basis for a chronic condition or on occasion for acute problems. If you live in the U.S., you should be aware that you are going to pay 2-3 times what residents of most other countries pay for the same medication.

If you are wealthy and have great health insurance, you can stop reading and worry about something else. If you are like most of us, you may occasionally be faced with "sticker shock" at the pharmacy counter.

As health care costs and the cost of health insurance keep rising, one of the ways employers and insurers have reacted is by raising the co-pays that even those with health insurance are required to pay.

Many older adults and those with less-generous insurance plans have responded by skipping medication – simply not taking a prescribed remedy or trying to stretch it out by taking it less often than prescribed. This can result in seriously bad health outcomes.

How can you cut your prescription costs without risking your health? There are multiple ways.

First, be open with your doctor. Tell them if cost is a concern, as there are many things that the doctor can control. If you are prescribed a brand-name drug, ask if the same or a similar drug is available in a generic. There is usually a huge difference in price.

If the need for a medication is borderline, see if lifestyle changes can substitute for a prescription. For such conditions as mild high blood pressure or borderline diabetes, exercise and dietary changes may avoid the need for a drug. Obviously, only do this with careful monitoring and discussion with your doctor.

If only an expensive brand-name drug is needed for your condition and you have commercial insurance, ask about the drug-company provided co-payment cards, which your doctor will either have or can request. These are typically used as enticements to get doctors to prescribe new expensive drugs and are a last resort when the drug truly is best for you. (Note: these are not allowed under Medicare, only commercial plans).

Shop around! There will often be dramatic differences in price between different pharmacies. Local non-chain pharmacies (if you can find one!) and the big-box stores will usually have lower prices than CVS or Walgreens for identical products.

Use GoodRx for coupons. A large majority of prescription drugs are available this way.

Check out the Cost Plus Drugs online pharmacy, which sells many generic drugs at substantially lower prices than you will find at retail pharmacies.

Before reaching for your insurance card, ask the pharmacy what the cash price is. For many common generic medicines, this may be less than the co-pay you will be charged if you use your insurance.

If you are in Medicare with Part D coverage or in a Medicare Advantage Plan, be careful to scrutinize the plan's formulary every open enrollment period. Just because your medications are covered this year does NOT guarantee they will be next year.

Don't be passive and accept sticker shock. A little work can pay big dividends.

Preparing For Select Board Presentation

Holy Ghost Reuse Committee

By Marilou Newell

The Holy Ghost Reuse Committee met on October 28 to discuss components of a presentation planned for the Select Board. The volunteers had taken on the task of not only diligently reviewing options for the town-owned acreage and surveying the community's wants, but what uses became the first and most relevant question the committee needed to answer. To reach a consensus, a survey was in order.

In January, after determining the best survey type, how to understand the collected data, and producing a report, the committee found passive recreational uses as the primary desired use.

During the October meeting, they revisited the survey results. There were 553 surveys submitted with the average age of respondents being 41 years of age. 80 were identified as non-full-time residents or non-residents from surrounding towns. The largest age group responding fell between 60 to 75 years of age. Respondents were also asked to share how frequently they might use the proposed renovated space. Then came the possibilities. What did they want?

A dog park and pickle ball courts rated high, but a study of the data showed it was nearly a tie between those wanting them and those not wanting them. For instance, those wanting pickle ball courts came in at 137 but the “no” responses were 163. The dog park was even closer of a tie, with 182 wanting one and 183 registering “no.”

Three passive recreational use options came out on top. Those suggestions were a picnic area (225), a playground (224), and a walking loop (270). They have now agreed to present those options to the Select Board as the primary uses desired by the committee at large. They believed that the noted three passive uses were not only the most popular, but also the easiest to accomplish.

Next step, meet with the Select Board. A December meeting will be arranged. Date and time to be announced.

Ask Marion Family Chiropractic

Is there evidence that seniors under chiropractic care have a higher quality of life and health?

Yes, there is a growing body of evidence that supports what many seniors have felt for years – that their life and health is improved with chiropractic care.

Researchers for Topics in Clinical Chiropractic found that for seniors age 75 and over, “Chiropractic users were less likely to have been hospitalized, less likely to have used a nursing home, more likely to report a better health status, more likely to exercise vigorously, and more likely to be mobile in the community. In addition, they were less likely to use prescription drugs.” Further supporting this improvement in quality of life, in a study published in the Journal of Manipulative and Physiological Therapeutics found that Medicare patients who had regular chiropractic care “reported making only half the annual number of visits to medical providers compared with the national average for individuals age 65 years and over.”

Marion Marine Resources Commission

by Michael J. DeCicco

Marion’s Marine Resources Commission met Tuesday, October 29, to review its agenda and its questions for its meeting with the Board of Selectmen on November 6.

Judging by the commission members’ discussions Tuesday, that agenda is to determine who’s responsible for managing, maintaining, and financing aspects of the town’s marine-related properties such as the wharfs and the new harbormaster building soon to open on Island Wharf. For example, they want to know who is responsible for maintaining the lawn in front of the Island Wharf band shell and the swales on the property that prevent flooding.

Cautious about sharing details of the questions the select board will be asked before the board itself receives them, Commission Chair Vincent J. Malkoski Jr. explained that the commission’s role has changed since it first formed. Its responsibilities have waxed and waned over the years depending on who the town harbormaster is.

“There are a bunch of things we’d like to try to resolve,” Malkoski said. “We want to clarify our role in the management of MRC properties.”

The meeting between the MRC and the select board will be November 6 at 6:00 pm in the Town House conference room.

In other action, the commission was unable to get an update on its Harbor Management and Capital Projects because Harbormaster Adam Murphy was unable to attend.

The board, however, progressed on its plan to revise and update the Waterways Regulations. Commissioner Jim Stewart said there are 13 regulations needing attention. The categories are purpose, definitions, registrations, moorings, floats (such as floating docks), out awls, anchoring, rafts, boat operations, non-criminal disposal of violations, enforcements, and appeals. Malkoski asked the six members present to each take one or two of the sections for further study and return with their report at the commission’s next meeting.

The Marion Marine Resource Commission’s next meeting will be Tuesday, November 11 at 7:00 pm, either at the Marion Police Department Conference Room, 550 Mill St., or the new harbormaster building, Island Wharf.

Many thanks to Karen Dourdeville, of Mass Audubon's Wellfleet sea turtle stranding network, for her presentation on Sea Turtles of Massachusetts. Karen spoke about the various species of sea turtles we might see in our waters, including the massive Leatherback, the Loggerhead and the much smaller Kemp's Ridley turtle. Every winter there are many sea turtle strandings along the Cape Cod Bay side of the Cape. Karen went over the protocol that volunteers and staff follow to quickly retrieve and transport stranded turtles to a facility where they can be helped to recover and hopefully be returned to the ocean. If you see an injured sea turtle please contact the Wellfleet sea turtle hotline at 508-349-2615. This depends on whether the new facility is ready for use, Malkoski said.

“I want to say how much we value their work,” Nelson said after the committee’s unanimous ratification vote.

In other action, the committee accepted the donation of a variety of books to the Sippican School library. The VASE program (Volunteers At Sippican Elementary) has donated The Curious Why by Angela DiTerlizza, Secrets of Astrology by Carole Taylor and DK, and Over and Under the Waves by Kate Messner. VASE is a volunteer organization open to parents, teachers, and community members who help raise and distribute funds to the Pre-K to grade 6 students for a variety of extracurricular and enrichment activities.

The Marion Teachers Association has supplied the library with Home in the Woods by Eliza Wheeler, Inventors by Robert Winston, and Sincerely by Emerson Weber. Doreen Lopes (Sippican School Interim Principal 2023-2024) and Peter Crisafulli (Sippican School Assistant Principal 2021-2024) donated Collaboration Station by Shannon Olsenn for the 6th Grade Class.

Nelson announced that special education teacher Taylor Nelson has resigned, because she is moving out of the state. Dr. Nelson noted she is not a relative of hers.

Committee chair April Nye announced that the next Marion School Committee meeting will be December 5, but no firm date has been set as of today for a Joint School Committee meeting.

The Marion School Committee will next meet on December 5 at 6:00 pm at Sippican School, 16 Spring Street.

"Bulldogs controlled the play for the most part and had a ton of scoring opportunities. The defense, led by Malcolm Bean stymied Somerset Berkley's attack for most of the game. Chase Grillo played a great game covering the opponent's best player and essentially shut him down for the entire second half. Goalie Own Harrington also made some key saves in the win" says ORR JV Coach Geoffrey Kelsey. They're 9-7-1 and were scheduled to play their final game of the season on politicians, including President Barack Obama, who said at the time that the decision “gives the special interests and their lobbyists even more power in Washington--- while undermining the influence of average Americans who make small contributions to support their preferred candidates”. Those predictions have come true.

Historian and educator Heather Cox Richardson, in her October 18, 2024, Letters From an American podcast noted: “The McConnell-aligned Senate Leadership Fund has, so far, spent more than $140 million in this year’s Senate races, with more than $136 million going to attack ads. In the four races that are most vulnerable for Democrats---Montana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin---that money is bolstering extremely wealthy Republican challengers.” Also, one of the richest men in the world, Elon Musk, this week pledged to give $1 million a day to certain swing state voters who sign a pledge.

She goes on to state that self-funding of election campaigns by Republican candidates in the above-noted swing-states echoes the late 19th century which led “in 1913 to the 17th Amendment to The Constitution which established that the power to elect senators must rest in the hands of voters”.

Today, wealthy individuals and SuperPacs increasingly reduce the power of average American voters. It is time to once again amend the Constitution to re-introduce campaign finance controls. Passage of Congress’s We the People Amendment (HJR-54) is one way this can be done. Encourage our elected pollical leaders to make this happen.

Fun with Fungi Hike

Join Mattapoissett Land Trust and Mass Audubon as we head out on an all-ages family hike at 'Walega-Livingstone Preserve' in the Brandt Island Cove trail system on Sunday November 3 from 9:00 am to 10:00 am.

Fungi are the decomposers and recyclers of our forest systems. Without them, forests would take much longer to regenerate. The mushrooms we see are just the spore-producing bodies of a much larger, more complex organism growing in the wood or ground below. Mass Audubon staff will be leading our walk and teaching us about these fascinating fungi.

Our hike will begin at the Anchorage Way trailhead located at the end of Tara Road; parking is available along the street. We recommend long pants and close-toed hiking shoes for this trail. This hike is for all ages and is free, however registration is required. See www.massaudubon.org/programs and search "Fun with Fungi."

The ceremony was led by the Cape and Islands Chapter of the Sons of The American Revolution. From the Files of the Rochester Historical Society

By Connie Eshbach

This is the text of the speech I gave at the SAR dedication on September 26 - wearing both hats - chairperson of the Historical Commission and vice president of the Historical Society. I want to preface it by saying how lucky Rochester (along with Marion and Mattapoissett) residents are to live in a town with such a rich history and one that is so baked into the history of America.

"I was asked to speak today about Rochester and the American Revolution, and I'll start with the statement made by the principal orator in 1879 at the 200th anniversary celebration of Old Rochester. 'Rochester sent more men to fight in the Revolutionary War than any other town of its size.'

Before you think this was a partisan statement, the speaker was a lawyer from Wareham. History offers some hints that what he said was true.

In 1768, the Boston Committee was working against Great Britain and for independence. They called for a Convention at Faneuil to pass resolutions against the taxes being imposed by the king. They wanted area towns to send delegates.

Plymouth County towns as a whole had an apathetic response to all the messages being sent out by the Committee. James Warren said to Sam Adams, and I quote, "Plymouth County towns could not be raised except by a power that would wake the dead".

Rochester was the exception. They sent delegates to the Convention and passed many town resolutions to endorse the Committee plans. They voted to break off all trade with Great Britain and to give up drinking English tea. Town Meeting also voted to increase their stores of arms and ammunition. They directed that up to a hundred men, minutemen, should be formed into companies and train 3 1/2 days a week.

At this time, any town official seen to have Tory

MARK SYLVIA

STATE REPRESENTATIVE

WHY VOTE FOR MARK SYLVIA?

Because your priorities are Mark's priorities.

He knows we must control costs while also supporting public services and protecting the rights of everyone.

Mark brings valuable government and private sector experience to Beacon Hill. He served as Undersecretary of Energy in the Patrick Administration, Plymouth Town Manager, and is currently Fairhaven Town Moderator. He also holds an executive role at a MA-based renewable energy company.

Because he understands the district.

Growing up and raising his family here has made Mark the person he is today: driven to help others, to be an advocate, and improve our quality of life sentiments was not re-elected and often would then move out of town.

In 1774, a large group of Rochester men marched through Wareham, picking up additional marchers on the way to the Barnstable County Courthouse. There they met up with men from Sandwich and Plymouth to prevent the court from going into session and to force the judges to sign some pro-patriot pledges.

On April 19, 1775, the Battle of Lexington took place. Rumors reached Rochester the next day. Many found the rumors to be unbelievable, so 21-year-old Abraham Holmes was sent to head toward Middleboro to get news. He met a messenger who told him that the battle had taken place, and the colonists had sent the British soldiers running back to Boston. According to his memoirs, Holmes said he headed home, 'as gay as a lark that the struggle for independence had begun.'

Three Rochester Militia companies marched off to Roxbury in response to the Lexington Call. Put all this together and you can see why so many men from town would have enlisted in the war effort.

Among the many Rochester men active during the Revolution, one in particular stands out. Elnathan Haskell enlisted in the Continental Army and rose to the rank of Major. He stayed with the army as the war moved out of New England, through New York and New Jersey and into the South. He became an aide to General Washington. If you go to the Capitol in Washington DC, there is a large painting of the surrender of British General Burgoyne on the dome. If you look seven men to the right of center, you will see Major Haskell of Rochester."

From the time she was old enough to be a nurse within her own family, Clara dedicated her life to helping others. She accepted no pay teaching poor children whose parents had no money to send them to school. She raised warehouses full of food, medicine and clothing during the Civil War, and courageously went to the front to nurse the wounded and dying. Finally, she started the American Red Cross which is her legacy today.

NBSO Presents Bridging Oceans

On Saturday, November 16, the New Bedford Symphony Orchestra presents "Bridging Oceans" in the Bronspiegel Auditorium at New Bedford High School. Music Director Yaniv Dinur and the orchestra welcome bandoneon player Hector Del Curto as the guest soloist.

The program for the evening will pair the music of German composer Johann Sebastian Bach and Argentinian composer Astor Piazzolla. Bach's music often uses forms developed from dances and Piazzolla caused quite a stir when he merged his love of the tango with his love of classical music. At an early age, Piazzolla discovered the music of Bach and couldn't stop playing it on the piano. He then became a virtuoso bandoneon player (an Argentinian accordion-like instrument that was invented in Germany) and learned to play Bach on that. Even when he formed his own tango band and played in the clubs of Buenos Aires, he infused his music with both jazz and Bach-inspired fugues.

This concert will transport you back and forth between two worlds of music. Worlds that are in some ways very different from each other but in the most important ways very connected to each other.

"Bridging Oceans" is sponsored by Bristol County Savings Bank and will take place on Saturday, November

Doors will open at 11:15 a.m., and the banquet will begin at 12:00 pm noon.

300 tickets, with 100 seats per town, will be available and distributed through each local Council on Aging.

ORRJHS students and staff volunteers will help facilitate the event and serve guests.

“This cherished event is not only a great opportunity for our students to volunteer their time but is also a way for them to practice making meaningful impacts on the community,” said Superintendent Nelson. “In the spirit of the holiday, I’m thankful for our continuation of this decades-long tradition of giving back to Tri-Town residents.”

Last year, the event was held for the first time after a three-year hiatus. More than 170 seniors from the Tri-Town area attended, and more than 60 seventh-grade and eighth-grade student volunteers served a full Thanksgiving meal to attendees. More than 50 door prizes were available, including holiday gift sets, small home items, and gift cards.

“The Thanksgiving Banquet is an event I always look forward to, and it is so rewarding to witness our students’ and their families’ willingness to support our community,” said Principal Coellner. “With the approaching holiday season, these connections become even more priceless.”

Any individual or local business interested in making cash contributions or donating door prizes can call ORRJHS at 508-758-4928 and speak with Toni Bailey, Administrative Assistant to Principal Silas Coellner.

MOVIE REVIEW

Retro

By Rob Gonsalves
www.robsmovievault.com

Conclave. Starring Ralph Fiennes and Stanley Tucci. Directed by Edward Berger. Running time: 120 minutes. MPAA rating: PG. Now playing in theaters.

The religious drama/thriller Conclave represents two things in short supply in movie theaters right now (as opposed to on streaming services). It is a film for grown-ups, and it is a film for grown-ups with a PG rating. As such, it is to be valued, and if you have the patience for a talking-heads inquiry into the morals of various Cardinals in the Vatican, it is also to be enjoyed.

In another time I might've razzed Conclave a bit for being grimly serious (though not without humor, mostly issuing drily from Stanley Tucci), but these are strange times that are half deadly serious and half dangerously unserious, and some of Conclave deals with a conflict between a progressive vision and one that seeks to go backwards. "We won't go back" versus "Make the Church great again," if you will.

This conflict is timeless, though; although the movie's release seems pointedly scheduled, Robert Harris' source novel was published in September 2016. Adapted by writer Peter Straughan (Tinker Tailor Soldier Spy) and directed by Edward Berger (All Quiet on the Western Front), the sometimes scandalous material is handled smoothly, without fuss, and the film's very restraint reads as a kind of moral intelligence.

The Pope dies, and it's made clear early on that no foul play is suspected, unlike in, say, The Godfather Part III. The College of Cardinals waste no time buzzing about trying to elect a new Pope, led by Cardinal Thomas Lawrence (Ralph Fiennes). Lawrence leans liberal, as does his friend Cardinal Aldo Bellini (Tucci), neither of whom especially want to be Pope, though they'd like to block old-schooler Cardinal Tedesco (Sergio Castellito) from getting in.

Other Cardinals are in the mix, and keep getting votes, though Lawrence also keeps finding reasons why they shouldn't be Pope. Some of these men had, or claim to have had, secret meetings with the previous Pope before he died. That Pope himself rested on the progressive side, and we begin to wonder how many of the machinations we see or hear about were created or at least indulged by him. Lawrence, played by Fiennes with a sort of gloomy integrity that may deservedly place him among Oscar frontrunners, goes from room to room like a private eye, calmly and politely interrogating shady-seeming Cardinals or consulting with nuns who have the receipts (literally), such as Sister Agnes (Isabella Rossellini). Sometimes the emotions run high, but the atmosphere is generally appealingly hushed — no sensationalist junk, not even any swearing. That PG rating, if you wondered, is for "thematic material and smoking" (Cardinal Tedesco vapes; amusingly, that's one way he lives in the present).

Why would a non-Catholic like me not only care about the events in this film but get lost in them? Well, Berger has assembled a cast of performers who know how to convey that they find the events important and can convince us of the same. Fiennes, Tucci, Rossellini, John Lithgow as a possibly corrupt Cardinal, Carlos Diez as the heretofore-unknown Cardinal Benitez (who has been ministering in Kabul) — they all care and make us care. It's Tucci's Cardinal Bellini who enunciates the film's theme with the appropriate urgency (while never raising his voice): this is a battle for the very soul of the Church, an institution in which even the fallen Pope, we hear, had begun to lose faith.

Does it deserve that faith? The Church, after all, is populated by humans, even if one of them is considered infallible (and I'm not sure the movie thinks much of the doctrine of infallibility). Some of those humans can and will act sinfully, selfishly, maliciously — we see or hear about example of all of them here. The brighter of the Cardinals understand that, as said in the film, they are not ideal but they serve an ideal, the ideal of God. To the extent that the Church moves away from that ideal via retrograde doctrine or even bigotry and hatred, it is serving men, not God. Lawrence and Bellini, who do not want the Papacy, know this. Their opponents seem not to. Conclave is an aesthetically soothing but thematically meaty work of entertainment about an intractable conflict, the very thing they used to make movies for grown-ups about.

TRITOWN HAPPENINGS

On Saturday Oct. 18th the Museum community program participants enjoyed a beautiful fall day walking Rochester's Shoolman Preserve looking for mushrooms. Mushroom enthusiast Adam Korejwa led our walk through the Oak and Pine upland forest looking for these fascinating specimens.

We heard about how the mushroom is merely the fruiting body of the wide network of mycelium which connects all plant and fungal species in order to exchange nutrients and warns of adverse conditions. We saw how some Boletes mushrooms, which tend to be thick and "meaty", will bruise on their underside immediately if pressed even slightly. We also found a fungus called the "white cheese polpore" which looks exactly like its name. We had fun with some of the "puff ball" mushrooms and inspected some of the smallest mushrooms on the rotting wood on the forest floor. Many many thanks to Adam for leading another terrific walk for us. The museum's upcoming programs can be found on our website: www.marionmuseum.org. Photo courtesy Elizabeth Leidhold

The next meeting of the group will be at 1:00 pm on November 20 at the Marion COA, at which his new collection of short stories, The History of Sound, by Dartmouth author Ben Shattuck, will be discussed. This is a book of interconnected stories, set in New England spanning three centuries, that explores how the past is often misunderstood and how history, family, heartache, and desire can echo over time.

Copies of this book are available to be checked out by book club members at the front desk at the Elizabeth Taber Library.

Mattapoisett Scholarship Committee

As we reach the November 1 deadline to pay our Quarterly property taxes, I want to take this opportunity to remind residents of an easy and impactful way to support education in our community. Under Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 60, Section 3, taxpayers are given the option to voluntarily contribute additional funds when paying their property taxes, and these funds can be directed to our local scholarship programs.

We have two programs for Mattapoisett residents: 1) Scholarship Fund for those graduating with a High School diploma: and 2) Education Fund for those residents who are not graduating from a High School but seeking to continue their education from a recognized

SALOME'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A bold approach has served you well in your workaday world, but you'll find that your private life will blossom in a more moderate atmosphere.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your determination soon pays off now that your goals are in sight. But be alert to a possible development that could cause problems if mishandled.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Expect the unexpected this week! Most surprises will be welcome, but even the less-pleasant ones can be handled with patience and common sense.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Learn to listen to the truth, even if it upsets your perception of how you believe things are or should be. Meanwhile, a family matter requires sensitive handling.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Unsettled situations don't get sorted out while you're catnapping. So stop putting things off and work out a schedule to help get your life back in order.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Someone close might be preparing to move away. Repress the temptation to try to change their mind and instead offer them your loving support.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Be careful about finances this week. Invest only when you're sure of your facts. In addition, renewing ties with an old friend turns out to be a very wise move.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A new wrinkle appears in a deal that you thought had been well ironed out. Use this delay to dig for any facts that might still be hidden.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) There is a need for you to be super-wary of making commitments. Take things step by step and reject any attempts to get you to hurry up.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) That cautious, conservative side of you is about to be overwhelmed by your equally strong sense of adventure and curiosity. Go with it!

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Cupid favors both attached and single Water Bearers this week. Help the chubby Cherub do his job by showing a special someone a little more affection than usual.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Changes in your professional life might affect your personal relationships. You need to reassure your loved ones that there is no change in your feelings for them.

BORN THIS WEEK: You enjoy your own company, but you also thrive in the presence of others. Counseling and clergy are good career choices for you.

facility. These awards cannot exceed $1500 per winner but there are no limits placed on the number of qualified winners per year.

Unfortunately, we do not have the funds to reward all our most deserving applicants. In fact, awarding one full scholarship in each category challenges our funding. Many of our residents are surprised to learn about this shortfall. Despite the area's relatively high income level, many are not even aware of the scholarships or the methods for funding them.

The official notice of this Scholarship fund is at the bottom of your tax bill. You can include an additional amount with your payment as directed on the bottom of your property tax bill. Additional funds can always be donated at any time via the Mattapoissett tax collector's office. If you have a question concerning the scholarship, donations, etc, please direct them to Christine Richards, Mattapoissett Town Administrator, Assistant to Town Operations.

This is a chance for us to invest in the future of our young people by helping deserving students pursue higher education. In a time when the cost of college continues to rise, even small contributions can make a big difference in helping students achieve their academic dreams. Local scholarship funds, supported by our community, are often the key to unlocking educational opportunities for students who may otherwise struggle to afford them.

I encourage everyone in our community to consider donating to support our local scholarships when paying your property taxes this year. By doing so, you are not only helping individual students but also investing in the future strength and success of our town.

Let's come together and make a lasting difference in the lives of our young people.

When you arrive, you will be greeted with live festive music. The MAC Halloween Parade Returns

The volunteer witches of the Marion Art Center have been brewing up plans for their annual Halloween Parade around the town on Thursday, October 31. Costumed characters of all ages are invited to join in for this fun family event. Participants should meet in front of the Marion Music Hall (we'll line up on Cottage Street) at 4:00 pm. Under the direction of Hannah Moore, the Sippican Elementary School drummers will lead the parade of witches and princesses, goblins and ghouls, wild animals, and spooky spirits. The parade route will head south on Front Street, up Main Street, north onto Spring Street and back down Cottage to the Music Hall. Don't forget to pop by the Music Hall at the end of the parade route for your treat bags, made with love by the good witches of the MAC. Department of Health and Human Services, in collaboration with the U.S. Postal Service has reopened COVIDtests.gov, so that households across the country can order four additional over-the-counter COVID-19 tests for free. These tests are intended for use throughout the 2024 holiday season to detect currently circulating COVID-19 variants. Clear instructions are included on how to verify extended expiration dates.

These efforts complement ASPR’s ongoing distribution of free COVID-19 tests to long-term care facilities, low-income senior housing, uninsured individuals, and underserved communities. Through this community organization distribution program and the home-ordering program, ASPR has provided a combined total of more than 1.9 billion COVID-19 over-the-counter tests.

As the fall and holiday seasons will create increased close proximity gatherings of people, the Administration remains committed to helping Americans access tests to help so that, if they develop a respiratory illness, they can learn whether it is due to COVID-19 and then make the best choices about seeking medical care and reducing risks to family, friends, and co-workers. To order four free, over-the-counter COVID-19 tests, visit COVIDtests.gov.

The Marion Board of Health has a limited number of COVID-19 tests available for pick up at their office. Please call 508-748-3530 for more information.

Drum Circle Class

Drum Circle class is held once a month at the Mattapoissett COA. Did you know that drumming increases dopamine and serotonin levels, which help to help elevate our mood? In addition, it can help reduce stress, among other benefits. Check it out once, and you won't want to miss a beat. The instructor is Sam Holmstock, who earned a B.A. Music Degree from Berklee College of Music. He has performed worldwide with the band Entrain. Upcoming sessions, starting at 1:00 p.m.: November 20, and December 18. Register for one or more by calling 508-758-4110 or email to coadirector@mattapoissett.net.

ORR Class of 1985

The ORR Class of 1985 40th Class Reunion is scheduled for Saturday, August 2, 2025.

Our reunion committee is working on location details and is excited to get our class together. We are looking at venues in Mattapoissett, New Bedford, and Fairhaven.

We are trying very hard to keep the cost as low as possible - potential price between $30-$75 per person. We will let you know the details via email as soon as we lock in a venue.

We would like to get an idea on the number of classmates and spouses/significant others who plan on attending. Please respond if you are interested in attending the reunion to Lisa Gayoski Garabedian at lisagarabedian122@gmail.com.

Thank you! We hope to see you all there.
